Labourly | PROUDLY CANADIAN

Now recruiting pilot partners for spring 2027

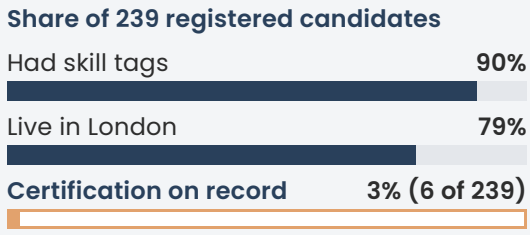

Know your region's skills. Start with one job fair.

Host a paperless Labourly job fair and leave with anonymized skills data on your community: what people can do, what they've done, and which credentials are verified.

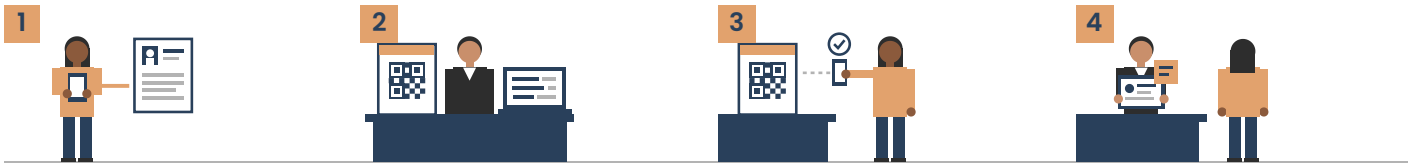

At the London Manufacturing Job Fair, run on Labourly: 239 candidates registered · 90% had skill tags · 79% live in London · most had 5+ years of experience.

Only 6 of 239 had a certification on record, and 24 of 37 certification entries were expired.

Verified credentials are the gap a fair can close.

HOW IT WORKS

Candidates register
Pre-register online with a resume, or at the door.

Employers get set up
We load their jobs and give each a QR code.

Candidates choose
They scan the QR code of each employer they pick.

Employers connect
They get the profile and resume, and add notes.

FOR ORGANIZERS

- Sell the tables: show employers the skills already registered.
- See the room: a live dashboard view, being built with pilot partners.
- Report to funders: regional skills summaries, shaped with you.
- Keep the pool: stay in touch with candidates who opt in.

FOR EMPLOYERS

- Meet people with the skills you need
- See verified certifications, not just claims
- Notes and resumes in one place, no paper

Newcomers and skilled trades workers can add certifications and have them verified, so their experience counts on the day.

Privacy. Candidates give consent at registration as two separate choices: to share their profile with employers at the fair, and to include it in anonymized regional statistics. We publish aggregates only, never individuals. Data terms are agreed in writing with you before the fair.

Planning ahead for the 2027 SSM re-bid? A fair in Feb–Apr 2027 means you'd have local skills data in hand before it.

Vicknesh Ramachandran CEO
vick@labour.ly

Zosia Tremblay · zosia@labour.ly
Executive Assistant & Project Coordinator

Book a 20-minute call calendly.com/meetwithvick/labourly-job-fair-pilot-call

labourly.ca